

Movies Recommendation

The English Patient

Prepare your “home cinema-theatre” for watch a great movie, make a popcorn, prepare some snacks and drinks, turn on the TV, increase the volume, and turn off the lights, because this movie deserve your completely attention.

The English Patient was produced in 1996, written by Michael Ondaatje and directed by Anthony Minghella who chose a great cast. Starring for Ralph Fiennes in the lead role, Juliette Binoche, Kristin Scott Thomas, Colin Firth and Willem Defoe.

The storyline happens in tow times, the mine time in 1944 near to the end of second-war and in the months before the war started. In October 1944 an military nurse in Italy, Hana (Juliette Binoche) decided to stay behind in an abandoned monastery to take care of an English Patient (Ralph Fiennes) who lost the memory and it's in terminal conditions, disfigure and extremely hurt by the fire in an airplane accident. After a wile on this spot tree mens start to live in the monastery with Hana and her Patient, a men called Caravaggio (Willem Defoe) who tray to finder out the person who traits him and collaborate with germans in the war, and others tow mine-hunters from the english army.

The English Patient slowly tells him story before the war for Caravaggio, who believe that he is the man he is looking for. Actually, the patient don't lost the memory, but the truth is that he remember everything but he tray to forget the past, specially the unfulfilled promise he mede to the love of his life. Slowly the Caravaggio understand how the patient broke the promise and make everything in his power for save his love life, but after all he lost her, been completely burned and finally became the English Patient.

